

FRIDAY WEAVERS

We just finished our first study group on Color and Weave and those participating agreed on another Friday Weavers' Study Group. The new topic is ECHO.

Victoria Sanders has agreed to facilitate the study group again. Once again, it is up to you to research it, determine your warp and weft, and weave a sample. We will present our samples and learnings at the March, 2019 Friday Weavers. If you have any questions about the study group, you can always ask them at Friday Weavers.

A few resources that Victoria found to help you get started follows:

Handwoven Magazine: September 2007, page 64 Barbara Elkins - Peacock Scarf in networked echo weave

Handwoven Magazine: January 2008, page 64 Bonnie Inouye - Two Patterns for Two Scarves on one Warp

Handwoven Magazine: January 2015, page 30 Marian Stubenitsky - Iridescent Echoes Table Mats

<https://www.denisekovnat.com/2017/01/the-warp-that-keeps-on-giving-echo.html>

<http://www.3springshandworks.com/Documents/2005-10-CWJ-SandraRude.pdf>

Complex Weavers Journal June 2015

Book: Weaving with Echo and Iris by Marian Stubenitsky

There is a kit sold by Lone Star Loom Room (www.lonestarloomroom.com) called the Multicolor Double Weave Kit that some of us may weave for the study group. The Kit was designed by Marian Stubenitsky. Though the kit also uses the double weave structure, the focus for the study group is ECHO. Marian Stubenitsky also designed another kit for Lone Star Loom Room called Iridescent Scarf Kit that also uses Echo weave. The kit(s) is not mandatory to be part of the study group, but it may be an easier way to learn than by designing your own project.

As you learn about Echo, try to keep the following questions in mind for the discussion in March:

How did you choose your project?

What did you learn about Echo? Any special threading or treadling?

What did you use and why? Do you think it would make a difference if you chose a different warp or weft fiber?

What did you learn about color doing this project?

Victoria is looking forward to sharing projects ideas in upcoming Friday Weavers meetings and sharing the results at the March Friday Weavers meeting. Please contact Victoria with any questions, Victoria Sanders. Vsanders1948@cs.com. Home: 808-769-4784

If anyone finds other references, please let Sherry know (ssheins@msn.com) and she can distribute the information to the group.